ALEX LAMB – CO-OPTED GOVERNOR

ALEX LAMB

I am the CEO of British Engines Limited, a privately owned engineering company that is based here in the North East. The company employs circa 1500 persons, with a significant majority of those being from the North East or currently living here, and is involved in the design, manufacture and supply of primary componentry for a wide range of industries across the energy sector.

I was born in Newcastle Upon Tyne and went to Merchiston Castle School and then Heriot Watt University in Edinburgh, where I received a BA Hons in Economics, before returning to live and work in Newcastle Upon Tyne.

I began my career at what is now PriceWaterhouseCoopers qualifying as a chartered accountant in 1997 before joining British Engines in 1999.

I became a governor in 2018 and currently have two daughters studying at RGS.
